

47. STARTING AND ENDING

A subordinating conjunction begins a subordinate or dependent clause. Such a clause must include a subject and a verb. Fifteen subordinating conjunctions are featured below. Some of these conjunctions begin clauses that start the sentence, while others start a clause that ends the sentence. Complete each sentence in the space provided. Insert a comma after an introductory subordinate or dependent clause. Remember that, unless the sentence needs a comma for clarification, a comma is not necessary when the subordinating conjunction does not introduce the sentence.

1. Because _____.
2. Whenever _____.
3. Unless _____.
4. While _____.
5. As long as _____.
6. Before _____.
7. So that _____.
8. Although _____.
9. Wherever _____.
10. Until _____.
11. If _____.
12. When _____.
13. _____ where _____.
14. _____ as soon as _____.
15. _____ than _____.